

Youth Homelessness in West Michigan

Community Report on Runaway & Homeless Youth Program Year 2015

Growing up is hard enough without having to worry about where you'll sleep. Yet every year in West Michigan, 2,000 youth are growing up while homeless. Arbor Circle meets many of these youth at each step in their journey – from the streets to stability.

As the only agency in West Michigan with a full range of care designed for runaway and homeless youth, Arbor Circle is often one of the first to spot emerging needs. We closely monitor the state of youth homelessness and how our community can help. This report shares what Arbor Circle saw during the 2015 program year. What does this mean for homeless youth?

Runaway and homeless youth have often experienced trauma. For many reasons, they feel left behind, so Arbor Circle meets them where they are. Our mobile street outreach team is out on the streets, at encampments and beyond. Often a sandwich, a toothbrush, and a listening ear are the tools we use to build trust. They become a youth's first steps from the streets to stability.

How many youth did Arbor Circle provide with shelter and support?

The Bridge at Arbor Circle is a 24-hour, 365-day emergency shelter for youth in crisis in West Michigan. Stays at The Bridge can last up to 21 days. During that time, Arbor Circle guides youth to learn new communication and relationship-building skills, provides them with counseling to support their emotional health, and offers family counseling and community connections to help them reunite with their families, schools, and community.
